COLLEGE

F O R E W O R D

We have tried to incorporate in this little book the prettiest scenes, the happiest days, and the liveliest activities on our campus.

Due to present conditions, we have had to make our book more compact than those of other years.

If in this gleaning and arranging, we have been able to give to you the spirit of everyday life on our campus, we shall have accomplished our purpose.

DEDICATION

To MR. W. B. JUDD

. . . a member of the history department, a graduate of S. T. C., and alumni secretary, who by the simplicity and sincerity of his manner, his liberal expenditure of time, and his untiring efforts, has made possible a close relationship between the first students of the college and those of today; and so has been influential in keeping alive and growing the spirit of S. T. C.

this the

is respectfully dedicated

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Attacks recently made upon teacher training institutions in the state have made it more necessary that the friends of education be zealous in the persueing of a constructive program. This institution will live in spite of its enemies. It will steadfastly carry on. Its destiny is high. When so many of its loyal sons and daughters go out with us to do battle against ignorance and superstition, we cannot falter, or fail. Our spirit today is one of increasing hope and sane optimism. . . . Best wishes.

Very truly yours,

P. A. LYON, President.

THE DEAN'S MESSAGE

Accomplishments that ordinarily would have taken a decade to achieve have been crowded into a day. In the minds of many, 1933 A.D. will stand in history as the close of one era and the beginning of another. You may be fortunate, indeed, in beginning this year a more active participation in the affairs that interest mankind. My wish is that you remember ever childhood, and seek, in all ways possible, "to prevent the return of conditions which came very close to destroying what we call modern civilization."

N. C. BEASLEY, Dean-Registrar.

● The newest of the campus buildings, having been completed in the fall of 1931, the Science Hall stands aloof, baring her roof to the sun, and leading the steps of inquisitive ones into the way of higher service to mankind.

● This is the busiest place on the campus. Since its foundation in 1927, there have been very few days when it was not in use from eight o'clock in the morning until five in the afternoon. It seems that books are truly the pleasantest things in the world.

● "It takes a heap o' living in a house to make it home" seems to fit "The Old Girls' Dormitory," for it has taken the personality of every girl who has ever lived there and with the aid of years subtly turned all of the laughter and fun into the beautiful, quiet dignity that seems to radiate from it.

● It's the merriest spot on the campus from seven in the morning until six in the evening — and why shouldn't it be? The hall is pretty — the clatter of dishes comfortable, and the constant hum of voices and laughter brings out the gaiety in all.

D I N I N G H A L L

PRESIDENT'S RESIDENCE

● The atmosphere of the whole college is caught and mirrored in this home of cordial friendliness and beautiful dignity. It gives to the campus a charming grace and a hearty spirit of welcome.

In Memoriam

Frank Albert Faulkinberry

November 27, 1888—May 13, 1933

JUST as this book is going to the press, we pause with bared head and grief-laden heart to pay humble tribute to the memory of our good friend and fellow worker, Frank Faulkinberry, whom, only yesterday we laid to rest. Shocked beyond measure was his host of friends by the tragedy of a death to which he seems to have been driven by brooding over the approaching calamity of broken health and failing strength. And indeed it is difficult to conceive of this one, so filled with life and vigor and virility, as ever being shorn of that strength upon which so many had leaned and by which so many were strengthened and upheld.

I think of him now in the bouyant beauty of his strength, the fine optimism of his spirit, the unselfish devotion of his nature, the compassionate greatness of his heart—for Master Great Heart, he assuredly was.

There are certain pictures of him that I shall wish to keep with me always; his genial kindly face, smiling at me and laughing with me in the college hall; his tall form, as he stood making announcements at chapel in that earnest, happy way he had, or sitting on the bench in the gym, watching with eager eyes and beating heart the progress of the game, or striding across the football field ready to minister to an injured player; his zealous earnestness of manner as he spoke from the rostrum of the college with words of fire, calling forth from the hearts of his students idealism and devotion and fineness of spirit, or as he poured out his heart in passionate appeals for righteousness before his class of men, or, bowed in the deepest humility, he called on the name of his God.

His faith in the goodness and mercy of God was childlike, his love for his fellowmen was deep and sincere, his slogan on the ball field was suggestive of hard work, fair play, and a spirit that could not know defeat.

Many young men and young women are bowed down in grief, dumb and unutterable, at his sudden departure. Many were close to him; many loved him. The greatness and nobleness of his nature called many into the reach of his affections. He cast a great and beneficent shadow, and many there are who were happy to come to its sustaining embrace and to rest in its gracious security.

It is not how one comes to birth nor how one suffers death that greatly matters when the final score is counted and the game of life is done. It is rather how one lived and how he has played his part and what he had longed and yearned to do and be. Judged by such a standard, we may pause in our grief to be glad for Frank's life, full as it was of simple goodness, fine idealism, rugged strength.

He was my sincere friend, my big brother, my fellow idealist. I believe he has gone, after the bitter and abrupt pain of departure, to the beauty and quiet that lies beyond the stars, "to where, beyond these voices, there is peace."

—NEAL FRAZIER.

An important part of each year's activities are those of the two glee clubs. Since the organization of the first one, several years ago, the membership has grown constantly until now there are two groups. Miss Saunders, the director, has been tireless in her efforts, and it is to her that credit should be given for the present organizations.

Among the prominent organizations on the campus are the orchestra and band under the direction of Mrs. Aultman Sanders and Dr. W. M. Mebane. Long years from now we feel sure that room 41 and the third floor rooms will come to life and testify to the many chords and dischords sounded within their walls. But be it recorded that no activity on the campus is complete, whether it be athletics, dramatics, or music, without some members of the musical organizations participating.

COACH FAULKINBERRY

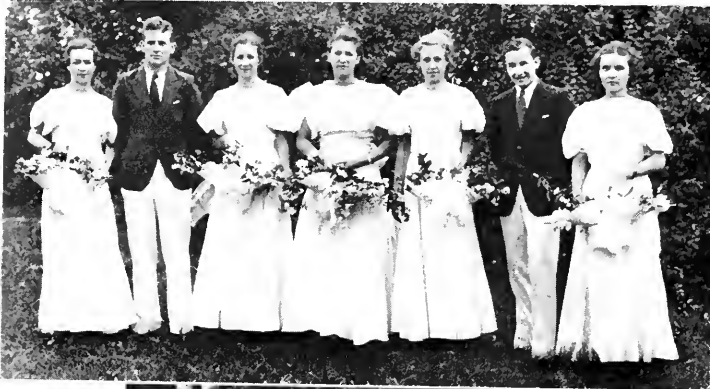

The past football season brought the most trying schedule ever tackled by a Blue and White team, but after a season replete with bad breaks, a fine ending was made against the University of Miami, in Florida, December 3, 1932. Games were won from U. T. Juniors, 18-7; Union University, 14-7; West Tennessee Teachers, 6-0; and Florida, 7-0. Games lost were: Sewanee, 12-0; Maryville, 12-6; Chattanooga, 26-0; West Kentucky, 21-7; Murray, 7-6; and T. P. I., 32-6.

BASKETBALL TEAMS

The varsity five, although suffering numerous setbacks through the midseason, improved with the close; and rang down the final curtain with victories over Cumberland, Murray, T. P. I., and West Tennessee Teachers. The final record shows nine victories against seven losses.

The graduation of Hindman, Kerr, Holt, and Holden will hurt the team rather severely next year. However "Butch" Young, who was recognized as one of the outstanding Southern players, will play again next year.
